The Charleston News and Courier, however, faces the music. In commenting upon a correspondent's prediction that the heavy reduction of duty on uncleaned rice and paddy will allow the market to be swamped by Indian rice, and make American rice-planting unprofitable, our Charleston contemporary says :

When, I would ask, did I ever make such an objection? I raised the question as to the rights of the State to reue or resell her own bonds that she had bought, but not as to the right to apology for misrepresenting me in his former article, the Colonel says that he mate government, and we further be-lieve that if the county should vote to farnish $100,000 under the specifications did inform himself as to what I said on Tyler as to what I said. Now, why didn't the Colonel apply to me for this information? He could have found me 3. That we do carnestly call upon the citizens of each and every district in the county to hold meetings and express the useless as opposed to the scheme applying to me he would have been deprived of the only pretext he had for writing the article. Since the Colonel discloses that, although it was his duty (according to his view) to answer everything that is said in connection with the debt settlement that ought not to be said, he let the Governor's message to the last Legislature, of which he now complains, go unnoticed, I am constrained to think that in taking me to task he was actuated by motives of a "personal character." The Governor was more fortunate. The Governor's message that the Colonel permitted to go unnoticed, and which he says did harm, was published in all the daily papers and as a public document, when in worth of fact what I wild on the says of the sa point of fact what I said on the floor of the Honse of Delegates to which Colonel

Ruffin took exceptions was not reported in any of the newspapers, nor as a publie document, and therefore would never have appeared in print, and in all probability would never have been thought of again, but for his Unnecessary Article I have no sort of objection to Colonel

Ruffin's devoting his time to writing; certainly no one could object to his aiding in "the improvement of James river." It is but natural for him to do so under all the circumstances. For the able articles that he has written "to keep General Ma-Tangies, March 10.—The United hone from getting the taroat of the State States war-ship Enterprise, mounting in his throttling grasp." Some of your readers who understand the moral putridity of Mormonism will be at a loss to understand how a so-called religion, universaliy condemned, could fasten itself upon the intelligence, faith, and charity of a community. But it has obtained lodg ment in the community known as Back Creek, in this county, and numbers among its supporters some very intelli-gent people. The majority of the membership are of that class of people who depend upon the superior intelligence of others for guidance in nearly all matters, especially those affecting their spiritual wellbeing, hence it is that two Mormon elders, assisted by the most intelligent, influential, and the wealthiest citizen of the community, who early esponsed the Mormon faith, have been able to induce some twenty-five or thirty men and women to embrace their teachings and over half that number to receive their THE CITIZENS OF RICHMOND OF ordinance of baptism. These emissaries have been operating in that section for several months, quietly but persistently, as the result of their efforts will show. They followed a Mormon bishop who suddenly appeared there several months ago and preached one or more sermons. He is said to have been very intellectual, thoroughly posted on the scriptures, and very elequent. The people being unused to pulpit oratory of a high order were easily captivated by him, and he left to cious for the early appearance and Isbors of the elders.
